INFORMATION SECURITY MANAGEMENT SYSTEM SOLUTION

Organisations are wrestling with more significant information threats, growing regulatory requirements, shrinking budgets and smaller teams. The rapidly changing technology landscape is making it almost impossible for most companies to keep up. Managing information is becoming a significant risk that could spell disaster for many businesses if not effectively controlled.

Organisations are implementing an Information Security Management System (ISMS) to effectively manage cyber, compliance and regulatory risks relating to the management of information. This is often aligned to the ISO27001 standard.

An ISMS is a systematic approach to align processes, technology and people to help you protect and manage your organisation's information risks. It enables compliance with a host of laws and focuses your organisation's protection efforts around covering three critical aspects of information:

- Confidentiality: information is not available or disclosed to unauthorised people, entities or processes.
- Integrity: information is complete and accurate and protected from corruption.
- Availability: information is accessible and usable by authorised users.

THE CHALLENGE

Implementing an ISMS can be a complex task for any organisation. The key challenges are typically:

Skilled resources to implement an ISMS

Disruptions and change within the business

Ensuring buy-in across the business

Multiple and mis-aligned processes

It is further complicated due to mandatory artefact requirements, time and resource constraints, a lack of competencies, and the lack of technology to support an ISMS.
